Shopping

Introduction

Here we have John going to a local green grocer called Gerry. Here John buys a number of different fruits and vegetables. We hear them speak about weight, amounts and prices. We also learn some words dealing with change as well as some descriptive vocabulary for the various foods mentioned. Let's see what John is cooking for lunch.
Dialogue 20 – At the greengrocer’s

Situation: buying fruit and vegetables

Characters: John, the customer, and Gerry, the greengrocer

John - Good morning.

Gerry - Hello, how are you?

John - I am fine, thanks. I want to buy some fruit and vegetables for today. For lunch, I am making a tortilla with potatoes. Eh...who’s next in line?

Gerry - You. It’s your turn. Tell me, what do you want?

John - I want about a stone of potatoes. I’m having my sons for lunch so that will be about five people in total.

Gerry - Ok, I’d say it’s just about right.
John- Yes, I think so.

Gerry- Did you need anything else?

John- Well, give me one head of lettuce, half a kilo of cucumbers and half a kilo of tomatoes.

Gerry- Right away. So...anything else?

John- No, I don’t think so. Yea – I forgot! I need something for dessert. What do you recommend?

Gerry- The strawberries I got today are very sweet and juicy.

John- How much a kilo?

Gerry- €3.50 to yourself.

John- They’re a little bit expensive, aren’t they?

Gerry- No, that’s the normal price.

John- Ok, I’ll take a quarter of a kilo, just to try them.
Gerry- Great, do you need anything else?

John- I don’t think so. I must go, it’s getting late.

Gerry- Yes, it’s two o’clock.

John- So, how much do I owe you?

Gerry- €14.75 to yourself, sir.

John- I only have a €50 note, do you have change?

Gerry- No, I don’t, not this morning.

John- Oh, wait! I found a €20 note.

Gerry- Brilliant, thank you. Here is your change: €5.25.

John- See you next Saturday.

Gerry- See you next week. And good luck with the tortilla!

John- Thanks. See you then. Bye now.

In Ireland

There are lots of places to buy fresh fruits and vegetables in Ireland. All supermarkets have some kind of produce section and there are many independent greengrocers who specialise in providing good quality produce. Some towns and cities will also have a market once or twice in the week where local people can sell their home grown fruits and vegetables. Due to the climate in Ireland, many everyday fruits and vegetables have to be imported. However, there are lots of Irish grown vegetables that you can enjoy, including cabbage, turnips, potatoes, broccoli, cauliflower and carrots, among many other vegetables. Potatoes were once the staple food in Ireland and are still very popular in Irish cuisine. Fruits grown here are more limited but include apples and berries. County Wexford, in the southeast of the island, is famous for its strawberries, especially in the summer time.
